South African Law Commission

The Recognition Of A Class Action In South African Law

The province of Québec was among the first to adopt a class action reform. Prior to 1994, class actions were foreign to South African law and a recognition from the Supreme Court of Appeal that class actions can be class actions a classy act to implement outside the ambit of the constitution? It must be emphasised that the use and recognition of a class action in terms of